History

The Aquatennial is the official civic celebration of Minneapolis which is held annually during the third full week of July. Originating in 1940, the outdoor festival celebrates the famous waters of Minneapolis—the lakes, streams, and the Mississippi. Historically, the Aquatennial was under the leadership of the Minneapolis Aquatennial Association, but in 2003 the rights to the festival were sold to the Minneapolis Downtown Association.

Originally known as “The Ten Best Days of Summer,” it is now advertised as “The Best Days of Summer.” Events include sports, games, parades, music performances, fireworks, and more, and are held all over the city of Minneapolis, often near the city’s lakes. During the Aquatennial’s early years, it was one of the most popular summer festivals. The festival has changed throughout the years, but some events have remained since 1940.

The Aqua Follies (which ended in 1964 due to budgetary reasons) and the Paul Bunyan Canoe Derby were two popular events that are no longer a part of the Aquatennial. During the early years of the Aquatennial, celebrities and politicians made many appearances. Gene Autry made an appearance in 1940, and other celebrities included: Bob Hope, The Lone Ranger, Bob Barker, Natalie Wood, Arthur Godfrey, Eddie Cantor, and Richard Nixon. During the 1967 festival, Buffalo Springfield and Jefferson Airplane performed in a concert.

One of the most popular events of the Aquatennial is the crowning of the Queen of the Lakes. The Queen of the Lakes has remained a tradition since the festival’s first year, and is still an important part of the festival today. In addition to the Queen, other Aquatennial royalty include: Ambassadors, the Commodore, Captains, Princesses, and Senior Ambassadors. The Queen of the Lakes, the Aquatennial Royalty, and the Ambassadors are expected to represent Minnesota and the Minneapolis Aquatennial throughout their year long reign.

Each year the official badge of the festival is the Skipper Pin. Since the first year, the Skipper Pin has been a collectible piece of Aquatennial history and is made available for purchase. The Torchlight Parade, originally called Illuminated Evening Parade, still draws a large crowd to this day. Other events that have remained popular throughout the years include music, food, and fireworks. Some newer events that have been introduced to the festival include the Milk Carton Boat Race, which began in 1971, and the Sandcastle Sand Sculpture competition.

Description of Collection

The Minneapolis Aquatennial Collection consists of 7 boxes and 19 additional volumes of both scrapbooks and photobooks. Boxes 1 and 2 contain general newspaper clippings and articles on the Aquatennial royalty and Aqua Follies. Boxes 3 and 4 are arranged chronologically and include programs, promotional material, budget information, Association meeting minutes, press releases, and other miscellaneous material. Boxes 5 and 6 are realia including buttons and plaques. Box 6 is flat oversize materials.
